TranSystems | ESYNC Announces the Addition of Ed Jones to its Consulting Team

Toledo, Ohio, January 15, 2008 – TranSystems | ESYNC, a leading strategic supply chain consulting firm, is pleased to announce the addition of Ed Jones to the company. Ed has a deep background in material handling automation and development of warehouse management and controls software, with almost thirty years of experience in the supply chain industry. He is an expert at evaluating the relationship between physical distribution requirements and business systems support.

“Ed brings a wide range of real-world supply chain experience to our consulting team. His extensive background includes retail operations and technology management, supply chain software design and development and business consulting. In addition, Ed has a proven reputation for developing innovative solutions and building cohesive project teams that is extremely valuable, both to our clients and our organization,” said Kevin Hume, Director of Consulting Services, TranSystems | ESYNC.

“I’ve worked with TranSystems | ESYNC in the past and have admired their methodologies and common-sense approach to clients’ challenges. They are held in high regard within the industry and I’m looking forward to helping maintain, as well as contribute to, their excellent reputation for high client satisfaction,” said Jones.

Prior to joining TranSystems | ESYNC, Ed’s employers included Working Machines, Real-Time Solutions, Hewlett-Packard and The Gap. He is an effective communicator and leader, presenting frequently at industry events on topics including real-time picking systems, material handling automation design and warehouse management.
